HONOR LEARN INSPIRE

Artistic heritage means different things to different people. We each bring our own definitions, approaches and perspectives to our craft.

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

Co-curators Betty Pasco, Pat Courtney Gold, Evelyn Vanderhoop, Lou-ann Neel, Alison Marks and RYAN! Feddersen selected works from the museum's

This exhibition is a response by six artists invited by the Burke to answer the question:

What is your artistic heritage?

Artistic traditions are embodied in the artworks around you. Look closely. What do you see? collections and created new pieces inspired by their reflections on artistic heritage. They come from communities across the Pacific Northwest and represent both diverse artistic backgrounds and generational experiences. This gallery conveys not only their interests in the rich artistic traditions of our region, but also their own journeys as artists.

These women hold deep expertise and insight about the range of artwork made by both men and women on the Northwest Coast in current and past generations. Their collaboration is groundbreaking in a region where the majority of artistic interpretation has been produced by—and has privileged—the work of men. The Burke thanks them for sharing their artwork and knowledge.
