

OHS Research Library, Gi 156

The fisherpeople knew where to build their platforms, how to make their own fishing nets and use their safety ropes. They had a special hand language to communicate above the loud roar of the Falls.

All River People honor the salmon in the First Salmon Ceremony, a tradition that continues today. This image shows the Downriver Chinook people honoring the salmon.